End of line for station

Neil Rhines/HTR

The old Dvorak service station on South Main Street in Mishicot comes down Thursday. Owned by the late James Dvorak, the fuel station remained vacant for about five years. The village of Mishicot received a grant to take the fuel tanks out and take the building down, said his brother Harvey, right.